HE MURDERED HIS KEEPER.

Tragedy as Well as Comedy in A Showman's Life.

TORTURING CRIMINAL ELEPHANT

Chains and Ropes Were But as Straw Bands to the Infuriated Animal.

He will be Conquered or Killed.

While the steam calliope was screaming through the streets and the showmen and show-women prancing before the curious thousands that line the sidewalks to gaze at a circus parade, quite another scene was being enacted at the circus grounds. Keeper Smith lay in the shadow of a tent with three men holding him while he writhed in his death agonies and even the physician was powerless to help him. His injuries were internal and his lips wers dyed with the blood that flowed from his mouth when he coughed. It was the tragedy of a showman's life.

Early this morning the big elephant "Syd" showed signs of anger and gradually worked himself into a rage. Keeper Smith went to him when suddenly and swiftly the lithe proboscis wound about him, the bones cracking as it did so. He was partially thrust into the brute's mouth then hurled twenty feet through the air. Master of animals Jenks who rushed up was seized and thrown upon the ground where the elephant would have trampled him to death in a moment had not another attendant come to his rescue. Jenks is not seriously hurt though somewhat sore and stiff from his tussle.

The Elephant Punished.

In such cases it is always necessary to punish the elephant, otherwise he becomes absolutely unruly. This elephant has killed two men before and had never been punished. The master of animals decided that he must be conquered.

Accompanied by another elephant he was led into the little thicket of pines just in the rear of the Hucomuga mills. Here his front feet were bound with chains whose links were an inch in diameter to two good sized pine trees. His hind feet were securely bound together with chains and ropes and then a block-and-tackle carrying a two-inch rope was fastened to his feet and then to a pine tree standing some twenty feet away. About thirty men caught hold of the rope and began to pull: with a scream of rage the mighty animal lunged forward and while the men were thrown right and left. Again the rope was made fast and so soon as the pull began the animal lunged snapping off the hook.

All the whille he was trumpeting fiercely. When finally he was securely fastened the men fell upon him with spikes, pitchforks and clubs. The anmal screamed and lunged while the men thumped, prodded and thrust. The forks would stick in the tough hide necessitating two or three attempts to get them out. The blood was oozing from a hundred pricks in the hide, but the brute was unconquered.

Directly in front of him was a pine tree a foot in diameter at the ground. Putting his forehead against this he swayed it back and forth like a mere twig. Suddenly he reached up and at one stroke of his proboscis as high as he could reach. One of the limbs he brandished with his trunk and his tormentors scattered wildly to get out of reach of it. One of the men who were prodding him ventured too near and with a single push of his proboscis the elephant threw him a dozen feet where he lay for a moment out of breath. Two others were treated in the same way during the torturing. A fork was thrusted through the tough cuticle of the ear and pulled out of the handle. The elephant caught it and drew it out himself and after brandishing it for awhile threw it away. He secured a rock in his fumbling about and threw it fifty yards where it feel with a splash in a pool of water.

After pricking him until they were exhausted the elephant

Was Still Unconquered.

Attendants were dispatched to bring straw. This was piled up under him and fired. As the flames enveloped him he screamed and lunged but would not cry for mercy. He caught up great quantities of dirt and threw it on his back in apparent efforts to protect himself against the fire. Three times the straw was piled up and three times the flames licked and curled about his body but it was all to no purpose. He would not give up. Finally when the straw was burned up the tough cuticle began to loosen from animals sides.

It Hung in Flakes and Sheets

three feet square and fell to the ground exposing the cutis smooth and white underneath. The animal would thrust his proboscis into his mouth fill it with water and spray himself as though it were a hose. The ground where he stood was ground into dust a foot deep by his struggles and the chains by which he was held had bitten into the trees two or three inches. It is not often in a lifetime that one may see an exhibition of Such Titanic Strength.

It was a spectacle never to be forgotten and when people learned what was going on hundreds came running to see it. Most of them came too late. There were few people save the reporter and the employes who saw the whole fight of the elephant with fifty or sixty men. The elephant conquered in the end. He was never cowed. Finally in despair the master of animals had a tent erected around him and gallons of vaseline were applied to his scorched and roasted sides to soothe him.

The punishment seemed cruel and yet it was necessary. It meant safety for his keeper in the future. The next time he attacks a man he will be killed. He is not a performing elephant but is taken along because of his size.

At 3:30 keeper Smith is resting easier and may recover unless internal hemorrhages set in.

DEFECTIVE, ROTTEN TIMBER

Causes the Death of Five Ladies at Cincinnati.

A BIG OPERA HOUSE DISASTER.

Not Yet Definitely Known How Many Were Killed—Five Bodies Already Taken Out.

By Wire to THE TELEGRAM.

Cincinnati, Oct. 16.—A common expression heard today in reference to the Robinson opera house disaster, caused by the falling of the dome, is "What a fortunate thing it is that the house had so few people in it at the time of the collapse."

It is not yet definitely known how many were killed. The bodies of five ladies have already been taken out. There are many at the hospital reported to be sinking and are not expected to live.

Upon careful examination it appears that not only was the construction faulty, but the material was defective and the timbers rotten.

Mildred Brewster in Jail.

By Wire to THE TELEGRAM.

Montpelier, Vt., Oct. 16. — Mildred Brewster, who murdered Annie Wholes because she loved her and then sent a bullet into her own head, is the most nonchalent and contented prisoner in the jail. She has almost entirely recovered from the wound of the bullet, which she still carries in her head. Miss Brewster was only jailed yesterday, when the grand jury returned a true bill against her for the crime which so startled New England last May.

British Cabinet Meeting.

By Cable to THE TELEGRAM.

London, Oct. 16.—The British cabinet held its first autumn meeting this morning. Lord Salisbury presided, and all the ministers were present except Lord James. Viscount Cross and Walter Long.

First Snowfall.

By Wire to THE TELEGRAM.

Denver, Col., Oct. 16. — The first snowfall of the season occurred at midnight. A heavy fall is reported from the mountain towns.

Bubonic Plague at Madrid.

By Cable to THE TELEGRAM.

Madrid, Oct. 16.—Three fresh cases of bubonic plague have been discovered here.

Larceny in Winston.

The Winston Journal yesterday says: About 2 o'clock last night a young colored boy named Galloway stole $20 from a white man, D. M. Cook of Stokes county. Mr. Cook was asleep in front of the Piedmont warehouse, and Galloway slipped up to him and took the money out of Mr. Cook's pocket. Mr. Cook awoke in time to see the youth running away with the money. The police were informed gave chase and about 3:30 Policeman Poindexter brought the thief in and recovered the twenty dollars which was returned to the farmer.

Squire Lehman tried the young fellow this morning at 9 o'clock and bound him over to the Superior Court in the sum of twenty-five dollars. Unable to give bond he was committed to jail.

Industrial Association Meets.

There is to be a very imhortant meeting of the Industrial and Immigration association, at the court house on next Monday night, at 8 o'clock. The matters discussed will be of peculiar interest to every citizen of Greensboro, and all who are interested in building up our home interests are invited to attend, whether members of the association or not. It is to be a citizens' mass meeting.

J. S. HUNTER, President
Greensboro I. and I. A.

Have Been Secured.

The Schalchi company have been persuaded to give Greensboro one night during their rest. Since receiving the last telegram, which we give below, the arrangements have been made:

"Having to sing four consecutive nights and days next week, Schalchi refuses to sing Friday night."

The authorities of the Greensboro Female College have consented to let these great singers use their chapel on Saturday night of next week. We will all be there.

Death of Mrs. York.

Mr and Mrs. A. L. York went to Liberty this morning where they were summoned by the death of Mr. Yorks mother. Mrs. York was quite aged.

THE CIRCUS TODAY.

Attractive Street Parade and a Good Performance.

The Robinson-Franklin circus circus came in early early this morning from Winston, where they exhibited to a large crowd yesterday. This mammoth show is composed of about 25 cars, which were divided into two sections.

At 11 o'clock this morning an immense crowd of people lined the sidewalks of the principal streets to witness the street parade, which was without exaggeration, the handsomest and most attractive which has been seen in this city in many years. The teams are fine ones, the band wagons and floats clean and bright looking, presenting a really pleasing spectacle. The steam calliope seemed determined to fulfill our prediction made yesterday, by playing with a full head of steam: "There'll be a hot time in the old town tonight."

The performance at the showgrounds this afternoon was witnessed by a large crowd. The menagerie is a most complete one, exhibiting a large number and various kinds of animals. The circus arena proper contained three large rings and the horseback ridiny trapeze performances and other features were of a first rate order. The clowns—the irrepressible fud-makers for the occasion—were up to date.

Among the sideshow attractions were the fortune teller, the tattooed man, the long tailed horse, the lady snake charmer, and others.

Taking it all in all, we may say that the show is considerably above the circuses visiting this section.

Judge Simonton's Decision.

Judge Simonton's latest liquor decision is one of the most important yet rendered on that ever recurring question.

He decided that in towns which are "dry" by their own ordinance, and by the act of the legislature, no original package can be sold, nor can any dispensary be established within their corporate limits unless the qualified voters so decide at an election to be ordered on a petition of one-fourth of the said voters. — Columbia Register.

THE book makers are giving odds of 100 to 1 against General Tracy. Evidently Mr. Platt's candidate is not mayor yet by a long shot.

MR. McKinley's attempted interference in behalf of Tracy indicates that as a generator of tidal waves he believes himself quite infallible.

ONE of the fads of the day is the convention. So soon as a half dozen individuals find themselves possessed of similar ideas on any given subject they proceed to hold a convention. To get together and talk is held to be an easy and satisfactory way to settle all questions that arise in the natural course of human affairs. Sometimes the convention becomes a means of rendering lucid and practical, what was before intangible; too often it serves only to confirm the crank in his crankiness by giving him a common interest with other cranks.

MR. Herbert Gladstone in a recent speech said of the Venezuelan question: "Our ironclads would have been there and our troops would have made short work of the Venezuelan question. But the United States appeared on the scene and the virtues of arbitration became obviously apparent." It is needless to say that the English press has paid its respects to Mr. Gladstone for that little paragraph. Yet it is an eminently frank and truthful statement of the case. It shows that others beside Americans have sized up England's foreign policy. Bluff where you can and backdown where you must; that is the whole business in a nutshell.

WE print today a card from Wharton & McAlister of the Southern Stock-Mutual Insurance Company. It is with regret that we note the state of affairs it reveals. We give it distinctly as our opinion that no good ever comes in the end from rate wars—no good to those who institute them and no good to those who get lower rates temporarily. The Southern Stock-Mutual is a home enterprise, composed entirely of North and South Carolina capital and we trust the people of the town and the two Carolinas will give them the consideration the work they have been doing deserves. Considering the men who compose the board of directors and the financial backing they have it is our opinion they are abundantly able to take care of themselves.

THE tendency of the administration to interfere in municipal politics is to be regretted, whatever the point of view. Those best able to speak from close observation assert that the less the connection between national and municipal politics the better for the latter. We are not inclined to think that Mr. McKinley is taking a hand of his own motion; it must be in response to pressure from some quarter. That is just Mr. McKinley's greatest failure as a chief magistrate, he is too sensitive to pressure. He allows political allies to drag or drive him into courses that do not increase the respect or the estimate that people have of him. It would be much more becoming in the President of the Union to let New York settle its own affairs.

SATURDAY'S LITERARY CHAT.

[All books and magazines mentioned below may be had at Wharton's book store.]

In a recent issue the literary critic of the Charlotte Observer criticizes a criticism by Madison Cawein, of Kipling's "Recessional." The Observer's critic says:

"Madison Cawein, whose name we frequently see signed to poems in the magazines, shows that he, too, is covetous of the honors that Kipling has won by his great poem. Mr. Madison Cawein (if he is not a female writer—we know really nothing of his or her history) contributes the following:"

The critic probably does Mr. Cawein an injustice in that observation. He is a southern writer, living in Louisville, Ky., and is, if we mistake not, on the staff of the Courier-Journal. He has published several volumes of verse that have been noticed very favorably by critics and what is more surprising, by the northern critics. William Dean Howells, especially has a high opinion of Mr. Cawein's poetic gems. He is perhaps the greatest living Southern poet, which is unfortunately not necessarily very high praise.

We give the following poem taken from the Cosmopolitan, for February, 1896, we believe, as a sample of the work of this too little known author:

A FLOWER OF THE FIELDS.

BY MADISON CAWEIN.

Bee-bitten in the orchard hung.
The peach, or, fallen in the weeds,
Lay rotting where still sucked and sung
The wild bee, boring to the seeds
That to the pulpy honey clung.

The orchard path, that led around
The garden, with its heat one twinge
Of strident locusts, struggled, bound
With sun-warped pickets, where one hinge
Held up the gate that scraped the ground.

All was the same: the martin-box,
With all its pigmy balconies,
And all its sudden-soaring flocks,
Perched on its pole among the peas
And silver-seeded onion stocks.

The clove pink and the rose; the clump
Of brass-bright sunflowers with the heat
Sick to the heart; the garden stump,
Rich with the geranium pots and sweet;
And there the well and wooden pump.

I rested with one languid hand
Upon the gate; the lonesome day,
Hushed as old sorrow on the land,
Droned round me. Dry with scents of hay
And weeds, stagnation seemed to stand.

I breathed the heat and hay, my eyes
Parched as my lips; and yet I felt
My limbs were ice—as one who flies
To some wild woe—and still I smelt
The hay and heat that soaked the skies.

Noon nodded, dreamier, drowsier
For one long, lonely, forestside
Bird-quaver. And I knew a near,
Hard aching anguish, she had died,
I felt it and no need to hear!

I passed her quince and pear tree, where
About the porch the grapevine trails.
How strange that fruit, whatever air
Or earth it grows in, never fails
To find its native flavor there!

And she was as a flower, too,
That grows its proper bloom and scent,
No matter what the soil. She, who
Born better than her place, still lent
Grace to the lowliness she knew.

They met me on the porch and were
Sad-eyed with weeping. And the room
Shut out the country's heat and purr,
And left light stricken into gloom
That love and I might look on her.

We venture the assertion that no poem written since its appearance surpasses it in that subtle suggestion of mood and atmosphere so characteristic of the better class of latter day poetry.

Of course it cannot be compared to the "Recessional" because the two are so utterly different—as different as "Marmion" and "Maud" for example. It is fine—the "Recessional" is powerful.

Old People.

Old people who require medicine to regulate the bowels and kidneys will find the true remedy in Electric Bitters. This medicine does not stimulate and contains no whiskey nor other intoxicant, but acts as a tonic and alterative. It acts mildly on the stomach and bowels, adding strength and giving tone to the organs, thereby aiding nature in the performance of the functions. Electric Bitters is an excellent appetizer and aids digestion. Old people find it just exactly what they need. Price fifty cents and $1.00 per bottle at C. E. Holton's drug store.

BRADSHAW, Att'y.

A CARD.

TO THE EDITOR:—It has been whispered around for several days that the Southeasten Tariff Association was planning a campaign of extermination against the Southern Stock Mutual Insurance Company of Greensboro, and the first blow was struck today by cutting insurance rates half in two. The rates have been cut on all those classes of risks which the Southern Stock-Mutual writes. No reduction has been made on frame stores and tobacco, and it is as evident as a thing is possible to be that these two classes are excepted and are held up at the regular rates because the Southern Stock-Mutual does not insure tobacco and frame stores and is not a competitor on these risks. There would have been no reduction on stocks of merchandise had it not been for the fact that the Southern Stock-Mutual has made a few exceptions to its rule by insuring a few stocks of merchandfse in Greensboro where full lines could not be secured on the buildings containing them.

We believe, therefore, that we will be fully sustained in claiming for the Southern Stock-Mutual the full credit for the reduced rates which are being offered today by the South Eastern Tariff Association agents. We claim that the Southern Stock-Mutual will be in this indirect way the means of an immense saving of money to the property-owners of Greensboro, and the Company's dividends have already saved directly to our people several thousand dollars. We claim that the Southern Stock-Mutual has been a faithful public servant; and we believe that the people of Greensboro can be depended upon to see to it that a Greensboro Company with such a record shall not be trampled out of existence by a hostile outside combination.

It will be admitted by every one who stops to reflect, that it would be short-sighted policy to withdraw support from the Southern Stock-Mutual and transfer it to these foreign companies on account of this temporary cut in rates; for it is too plain to need explanation, that the object of the Tariff Association is to drive the home company out of business so that they can have a clear field to make whatever rate they please. This is not the first fight they have made on local companies, and whenever they have succeeded in suppressing a local competitor like the Southern Stock-Mutual, they immediately return to high rates and it may be depended upon that they add on enough to make up for all they lose in running out compettiion.

What they expect and want the Southern Stock-Mutual to do is to cut rates with them; they know they can stand it longest; they think they can starve us out at low rates. We propose to take the only safe course that is open to us, to maintain the established rates which have prevailed heretofore, and if the people of Greensboro will stand by us in this for a little while, the Southeastern Tariff Association is powerless to hurt the Southern Stock-Mutual Insurance Company.

We are maturing a plan that we expect to lay before the business men of Greensboro on Monday, the 18th inst., which will commend itself to them as a business proposition and which will effectually meet the cut rates which are being offered by the outside companies, and we earnestly request our friends among the merchants especially that they will reserve their judgment and not place insurance on their stocks at the cut rates until we have had an opportunity to mature our plan and lay it before them on Monday next.

Something to Depend On.

Mr. James Jones, of the drug firm of Jones & Son, Cowden, Ill., in speaking of Dr. King's New Discouery, says that last winter his wife was attacked with la grippe, and her case grew so serious that physicians at Cowden and Pana could do nothing for her. It seemed to develop into hasty consumption. Having Dr. King's New Discovery in store, and selling lots of it, he took a bottle home, and to the surprise of all she began to get better from first dose, and half dozen dollar bottles cured her sound and well. Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds is guaranteed to do this good work. Try it. Free trial bottles at C. E. Holton's drug store.

This Young Man

saw one of the Mrs. Jane Hopkins books, describing the make of the celebrated Mrs. Hopkins kind, and straightway hied himself to No. 300, South Elm Street, and secured one of the

The good judgment of this boy was so practical that one of his comrades composed the following lines.

There was a boy in our town,
And he was wondrous wise;
He went into a Clothing Store,
Near to his home it lies.

And when he saw the Hopkins Clothes,
With all his might and main
He jumped into a suit of them
And ne'er came out again.

Home People.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., April 5, 1895.

MRS. JOE PERSON,

Madam:—last year I was afflicted with some skin trouble affecting my feet, pronounced by my physician to be erythema. I was confined to my room for some two months and was lame for six months or more. After trying many remedies without effecting a cure, I resorted to your Remedy. After taking three bottles I began to improve, and before I had finished the fifth or sixth bottle I was practically free of the trouble. Once since then there recurred symptoms of its return, when I again resorted to your Remedy, and again the trouble disappeared. I believe I am indebted to you for relief from a very serious affliction.

Yours truly,
HAMILTON C. JONES.

The State Normal and Industrial College has the best opening in its history. Recitation work began this week, and its enrollment is now four hundred and four.

W. Seton Kent, the courteous and gentlemanly representative of Barnhardt Bros. & Spindler, of Chicago, is in the city today registered at the McAdoo, and will spend Sunday here.

Mrs. Lettie H. Walker is visiting Mrs. B. Frank Mebane on church street. Mrs. Walker is the North Carolina member of the Board of Regents who have charge of Mt. Vernon —Washington's home and tomb.

The coupler of one of the Southern's freight cars pulled out at the Ashe street crossing yesterday, and considerable dust was raised by the escaping steam from the air brakes. No harm was done, except a little delay to a wagon or two waiting to pass on.

The good work still goes on along South Spring street. The grading is now being conducted down near the C. F. & Y. V. crossing. When this work is completed, South Spring will be one of the most desirable thorough fares in the city for driving and bicycling.

The meeting at Centenary church during this week has resulted in several professions. The congregations have been good and services may continue for another week. The doors of the church will be opened for the reception of members at the morning hour. The pastor is anxious to see all the members at the service tomorrow morning.

Thos. L. Brown, recently elected to take charge of the department of horticulture at the Normal and Industrial College, and as general superintendent of the college grounds, has begun his work, which will add greatly to the attractiveness and usefulness of the institution. Steps have been taken for the establishment of a department of dairying and poultry raising.

FOOTBALL PLAYERS.

Guilford College Won in Yesterday's Game to the Tune of 6 to 0.

The game of football yesterday afternoon between the Guilford College boys and the Greensboro Athletic club was a hot one, both as to the temperature and the work of the teams. For Greensboro in the line, "Big Dan" was the star. Buchanan as left tackle, also did splendid work. You could get on an opening between them at any time. Boycott was at center for the first time. He is steady and strong. Behind the line it is hard to say which did best. Caldwell, Devin and Douglas all did good work. Taylor at quarter back for the first time, played like a veteran. His passing was accurate and he kept his head well throughout the game. Reynolds, Boon and Wharton, the new men, are first-class material, and with practice will be number one players.

For Guilford College, Tomlinson, Petty and Hill did the work. Hill's 60-yard run round our right end for a touchdown, was the star play of the game. They play snappy ball, have good interference and plenty of grit and rely on their quick running around the ends.

Greensboro depended on her heavy line bucking.

In the first half Hill, for Guilford, made a touchdown and Tomlinson kicked a goal.

In the second half Greensboro bucked the line with one or two end plays and forced Guilford up hill until within three feet of the goal, when the whistle blew and the game was over.

The Quakers are a gentlemanly set and plucky players, but they can bluff for all that.

When the game was called the score stood 6 to 0 in favor of Guilford College.

The men lined up as follows:

Greensboro—Boycott, c; Wright, r g; Daniels, l. g; Wharton, Boon, r. t; Buchanan, l. t; Causey, Douglas, r.e; Reynolds, l. e; Devin, r. h. b; Douglas, Wharton, l. h. b; Taylor, q. b; Caldwell, f. b.

LIST OF AGED PEOPLE.

They Live in and Around Elkin, Surry County.

Mr. A. Chatham, of Elkin, has made out a list of the aged people in that section. It as follows:

J. E. Hester is 83 years old and has a pair of pants which he purchased before the war and he has had them so long his oldest child doesn't remember when he bought them; W. K. Bryan is 86 and Henry Thomas is 98 and chops up the stove wood used in the family every day. His wife, Nancy, is 85; Silas Sale is 93 and is as lively as a cricket; Rev. J. Needham is 97 and preaches nearly every Sunday; Mrs. Mary Wagoder is 91: J. E. S. Morrison, 83; Woodson Roberts, 92; F. A. Harris, 83, and his wife, Sarah, 80. Lewis Harris is 103 and remembers when this country was a dense wilderness. His youngest daughter is 67. James Belton is 89 and was corporal in the raid that killed Joe Smith, the Mormon elder, way back in the 40s. Eli Blackburn is 93. Wm. Forrester, 98 and Nick Johnson, 85; Judith Martin, colored, is 106, and has cut her second set of teeth and regained her eyesight. With three or four exceptions all these aged persons live in Surry county and the majority within a radius of ten miles of Elkin.

Each one Separate.

If each lump of coal was separate, with legs to walk on and arms to wash and brush itself clean, it would be just a little cleaner, and could get into your cellar just a little easier than it does at present. Mind you, only just a little. We think we have the cleanest and best coal ever mined, and that we deliver it as carefully and promptly as it can be done. We should be glad to have your opinion and we'll treat you fairly.
